

Help us Build an Indigenous Healing Garden
at Victoria University

“This is not simply another garden. Our Indigenous Healing Garden is a tangible realization of our commitment to build relationships between and among Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples. As this garden grows, it will remind us that the work toward truth and reconciliation changes in relationship with our seasons, environment, and each other. It will be a visible reminder that we all belong here - students, staff, librarians, faculty and alumni. This garden’s addition to our beautiful campus will be a place to connect, learn and reflect.”

Dr. Rhonda McEwen, president and vice-chancellor of Victoria University in the University of Toronto

Our garden will be:

- Located between Victoria College and Emmanuel College
- Fully accessible
- Ecologically sustainable with Indigenous healing plants and flowers
- Created in collaboration with Indigenous communities
- Connected to Emmanuel College’s academic curriculum, focusing on Indigenous cultures and our relationship to the land

Our goal is to raise $500,000.

Everyone is invited to participate and donate at any level. All donors will be recognized in a campaign donor list. There are also some specific naming opportunities (please note that business or organization names, other than charitable organizations, are not permitted).
